Well, England are really in trouble this time, and the Test hasn't even started yet. Both Boycott and Trueman will be unable to play, and they've only got one reserve available after the injuries in the last match. What's that?

One of the spectators appears to have walked over to the Pavillion and is talking to the Umpire and Captains. Ladies and Gentlemen, it appears that England have a new player. He's refusing to give his real name, but he says that the MCC know him as Arthur Pendragon. Well, lets hope that this Arthur can save Britain in their time of trial today...

Background

Well, he's Arthur, isn't he? He loved, he lost. He ruled, he fought, he almost died.... He retreated to his Chancel, and will come again when Britain needs him. Lancelot was an early Anchor; which made his betrayal all the harder to take...

Janice

Janice is a Chancel-born descendant of Tristan and Iseult of the White Hands. She works in the Civil Service of Great Britain. She got to know Arthur during research on her book "Arthur, the historical figure behind the legends", and their relationship had grown to a deep friendship when Arthur's previous Anchor died.
